Oil, A Technical Analysis

Summary of the Technical Analysis for Oil. (Moving Contract).

Day Trading Analysis:

We are expecting oil to begin the day with a bias to decline and we are expecting a test of 64 if not 62.5 on Monday so long as 65.1 holds as resistance. In fact 65.1 should be treated as inflection on Monday. If 65.1 holds as resistance expect declines as noted above. Otherwise, if 65.1 break higher, expect an increase to near 66.9 instead.

Initial intraday Trading Parameters for OIL exist between 64 and 65.1

If 64 breaks lower expect 62.5

If 65.1 breaks higher expect 66.9

Otherwise expect 64 – 65.1 to hold

Swing Trading Analysis:

We are expecting oil to decline from current levels until 62.5 is tested. From there, after a bounce, further declines to near 60 are probable. This assumes that 65.1 holds as resistance in oil. So long as it does, expect the aforementioned declines. If, however, 65.1 breaks higher eventual tests of 66.9 will appear likely and 73 will likely be tested afterwards.

Initial intraday Trading Parameters for OIL exist between 62.5 and 66.9

If 62.5 breaks lower expect 60

If 66.9 breaks higher expect 73

Otherwise expect 62.5 – 66.9 to hold

Longer Term Trading Analysis:

We are expecting oil to trend lower unless it turns higher immediately because longer term up-channel support is beginning to break lower. So long as oil continued to move lower we are expecting a test of 60 in the days ahead. If, however, oil manages to turn higher immediately, what appears now to be a break of up-channel support levels may be thwarted and upside moves should be expected over time instead. 65.1 should be treated as inflection in this regard. If 65.1 holds as resistance, expect 60. If 65.1 breaks higher, expect 73 to be tested over time instead.

Initial Longer Term Trading Parameters for OIL exist between 60 and 65.1
--

If 60 breaks lower expect 51

If 65.1 breaks higher expect 73
Otherwise expect 60 – 65.1 to hold
